- b) the same persons directly or indirectly participate in the management, control or capital of two persons.

2. A person directly or indirectly participates in the management, control or capital of an enterprise if:

- b) he/she actually controls the business decisions of an enterprise.

3. Persons that are not related shall be independent.

4. Any transaction between related persons shall be a controlled transaction.

5. Any transaction between independent persons shall be an uncontrolled transaction.

6. Margin is a rate of profitability calculated as the ratio of such indicators as purchases, sales, expenses and assets.

7. Transaction conditions shall mean the financial or other relevant indicators used in applying a transfer pricing method.

Law of Georgia No 5202 of 8 November 2011 – website, 22.11.2011

Article 127 – General principles of transfer pricing

1. For the purposes of this Code, where a Georgian enterprise performs one or several financial or commercial transactions with a related enterprise, which is not a Georgian enterprise, each of such enterprises shall determine the amount of its profit in accordance with the concept of an arm's length transaction.

2. The amount of taxable profit of an enterprise performing one or several financial or commercial controlled transactions with a related enterprise shall be in accordance with the concept of an arm's length transaction, if the terms of the transaction do not differ from the terms which would have been agreed upon if a comparable transaction had been performed between related enterprises under comparable circumstances.

3. If the established terms of the transaction specified in the first paragraph of this article are not conducted as if it were at arm's length, any profits that would have accrued on one of the enterprises if the established terms of the transaction had been conducted at arm's length, but have not so accrued by reason of nonconformity with an arm's length transaction, may be included in the profits of that enterprise and taxed accordingly.

4. An uncontrolled transaction shall be comparable with a controlled transaction if:

a) there is no such significant difference between them that would have had any essential effect on the financial indicator that is measured by a transfer pricing method;

b) in the case of the difference indicated in subparagraph (a) of this paragraph, for the purpose of eliminating the results of such difference, a reasonably correct adjustment in the financial indicator of an uncontrolled transaction has been made.

5. Provisions of paragraph 3 of this article shall also apply to cases where a Georgian enterprise performs one or several financial or commercial transactions with a resident of a country with preferential tax treatment, irrespective of whether they are related persons or not. However, a transaction, one of the parties to which is a resident of a country with preferential tax treatment, shall be considered as a controlled transaction.

6. The criteria, according to which the price of a transaction to be examined is deemed to be an arms-length price for the purposes of this article, shall be determined by the Minister of Finance of Georgia.

7. The provisions of the third paragraph of this article shall also apply where a Georgian enterprise performs one or several financial or commercial transactions with its permanent establishment.

Article 128 – Transfer pricing methods

1. The following transfer pricing methods shall apply to determine the conformity of the amount of taxable profit with the concept of an arm's length transaction:

a) Comparable Uncontrolled Price (CUP) Method. This method compares the price charged for property or services transferred in a controlled transaction to the price charged for property or services transferred in a comparable uncontrolled transaction;

b) Resale Price Method. This method compares the margin arising from the sale in an uncontrolled transaction of goods purchased in a controlled transaction with the margin arising from the sale in a comparable uncontrolled transaction of goods purchased in comparable and uncontrolled transactions;

c) Cost Plus Method. Under this method, a cost plus mark-up that is added to the direct or indirect costs incurred for the supply of goods or services in a controlled transaction is compared with the cost plus mark-up that is added to the direct or indirect costs incurred for the supply of goods or services in a comparable uncontrolled transaction;

d) Transactional Net Margin Method. Under this method, the net profit margin obtained by an enterprise in a controlled international transaction in relation to the appropriate indicator (e.g. sales, costs, assets) is compared to the net profit margin obtained in a comparable uncontrolled transaction in relation to the appropriate indicators;

e) Transactional Profit Split Method. Under this method, a portion of the profit/loss received from the transaction, which an independent enterprise would presumably have earned in a comparable uncontrolled transaction, is attributed to each enterprise involved in the controlled transaction.

2. The arm's length price of a controlled transaction shall be determined by the method that best suits each particular transfer pricing instance.

Law of Georgia No 189 of 28 December 2012 – website, 29.12.2012

Article 129 – Special provisions of transfer pricing

1. If so requested by a tax authority, a taxpayer shall provide an explanation as to why he/she believes that the profit earned by him/her is in accordance with the concept of an arm's length transaction defined by Article 127(1) of this Code. At the same time, a taxpayer may provide sufficient information and analysis to back up his/her arguments and to verify the conformity of the transactions performed by the taxpayer with related persons with Article 127(1) of this Code.

2. If the terms of an agreement concluded between an enterprise taxed in Georgia and its related enterprise is adjusted by a tax authority of another country, as a result of which that country is to charge taxes on that portion of the profit that has already been taxed in Georgia, and Georgia has signed a double taxation avoidance agreement with that country, then the Georgian tax authority shall, based on the request from the Georgian taxpayer enterprise, verify whether the adjustment made is in accordance with the concept of an arm's length transaction. If the tax authority concludes that the aforesaid adjustment complies with the concept of an arm's length transaction, it shall make appropriate corrections and adjust the amount of tax of the Georgian taxpayer enterprise.

3. Transfer pricing methods and their application, determination of comparability of uncontrolled transactions, transaction adjustment procedure, information and documents to be submitted by the parties to a transaction to a tax authority, sources of information on arms-length prices, price range application procedure, timeframes to be applied for the purposes of this Chapter and other procedural matters shall be determined by an order of the Minister of Finance of Georgia.

Article 129¹ – Advance pricing arrangement

1. Based on a taxpayer's application, the Head of the Revenue Service may sign an advance pricing arrangement with the taxpayer for purposes of this Chapter. An advance pricing arrangement is made before the commencement of a transaction, for a fixed period of time; it determines a set of criteria for determining the transfer pricing for those transactions. Such criteria include methods, comparable transactions and appropriate adjustments to them, as well as critical assumptions as to future transactions, etc.

2. An advance pricing arrangement shall apply only to the person in relation to whom it has been concluded. At the same time, an advance pricing arrangement shall make a reference to the provision of the legislation of Georgia on which it is based.

3. If a person acts under an advance pricing arrangement, a controlling authority shall in no event make a decision or charge taxes and/or penalties that contradict the advance pricing arrangement.

4. An advance pricing arrangement shall not apply if:

a) the facts and circumstances indicated in the advance pricing arrangement which would have affected the advance pricing arrangement, do not correspond to the actual facts and circumstances;

b) the provision of the legislation of Georgia on which the advance pricing arrangement was based, has been abolished or amended.

5. The provision of the legislation of Georgia that is unfavourable to a taxpayer and that has been given a retroactive force shall not affect the transactions performed under an advance pricing arrangement signed before the provision took effect.

6. The information provided by a person for signing an advance pricing arrangement shall be treated as a tax secret.

7. If the price declared by a taxpayer is in accordance with the concept of an arm's length transaction, the taxpayer shall not be held liable under this Code just because he/she has violated a condition of the advance pricing arrangement referred to in the first paragraph of this article.

Article 239 – Tax lien/mortgage

1. Imposing a tax lien/mortgage shall be the right of the State to secure payment of outstanding tax liabilities from the property of a taxpayer or any other liable person.

2. The right to register a tax lien/mortgage shall arise when the tax liability arises and upon registration with the registration authority, and shall extend, within the scope of the tax liability, to any property owned by and/or recorded on the balance sheet (other than property held under a lease) of the person, including the property acquired after the tax liability arose. Imposition of a tax lien/mortgage may be exercised where provided for by Article 265 of this Code.

3. A notice on exercising the right to impose a tax lien/mortgage shall be sent to the taxpayer/liable person and to the relevant registration authority that shall be obliged to register the tax lien/mortgage no later than the day following the day of receipt of such notice.

4. As a result of selling property under a tax lien/mortgage, as provided for by the legislation of Georgia, all the real rights arising after the registration of the tax lien/mortgage shall be cancelled, while any other tax lien/mortgage registered before the registration of the tax lien/mortgage shall remain in force.

5. If the property under a tax lien/mortgage is sold or in any other way transferred to any other holder without cancelling the tax lien/mortgage, the tax lien/mortgage shall continue to apply to such property with respect to its new holder. Such property shall be seized and sold in accordance with Articles 241 and 242 of this Code.

6. If any tax lien/mortgage on a person's property was registered in favour of banking institutions, microfinance organisations, insurance companies, international financial institutions and financial institutions of developed countries, defined by Article (1)(e) of the Law of Georgia on Commercial Bank Activities, prior to the registration of the tax lien/mortgage, and such property is sold, the proceeds of such sale shall first clear the claims of such financial institutions to the extent of liabilities arising prior to the registration of the tax lien/mortgage, and after that the tax liability shall be claimed for. A tax lien/mortgage shall not apply to a new owner of such property. If the remaining amount is not sufficient for the full payment of the tax liability, any outstanding tax liability shall remain in force for a person whose property was lien/mortgaged.

6¹. If, before registration of any tax lien/mortgage on a person's property, a commercial bank, a microfinance organisation, an insurance company or a financial institution of developed countries defined by Article (1)(e) of the Law of Georgia on Commercial Bank Activities transfers the claim secured by the tax lien/mortgage to a special purpose vehicle for securitisation set up in accordance with the Law of Georgia on Transformation into Securities and such property goes for sale, proceeds of such sale shall first clear the claims of the special purpose vehicle for securitisation to the extent of liabilities arising prior to the registration of the tax lien/mortgage, and after that the tax liability shall be claimed for. A tax lien/mortgage shall not apply to a new owner of such property. If the remaining amount is not sufficient for the full payment of the tax liability, any outstanding tax liability shall remain in force for a person whose property was lien/mortgaged.

7. The order of priority of a tax lien/mortgage claim after completion of the proceedings under the Law of Georgia on Rehabilitation and Collective Satisfaction of Creditors shall be defined in accordance with the same procedure that existed before commencement of the proceedings under the Law of Georgia on Rehabilitation and Collective Satisfaction of Creditors.

8. (Deleted – 28.12.2012, No 189).

9. Tax lien/mortgage shall be cancelled:

- a) if the lien/mortgaged property has been sold by the competent authority identified under Article 242 of this Code for the purpose of clearing the tax liability;
- b) if by written consent of the tax authority the taxpayer has sold the property or a part of it and directed the proceeds in full towards clearing the outstanding tax liability;
- c) if the property has been abandoned to the state according to procedures provided for by the legislation of Georgia;
- d) if the lien/mortgaged property is sold under the Law of Georgia on Rehabilitation and Collective Satisfaction of Creditors;

d¹) in the cases provided for by Article 40¹(5) of the Law of Georgia on Enforcement Proceedings;

e) if no tax liability arises as a result of applying the procedures provided for by Article 265 of this Code;

f) (Deleted – 28.12.2012, No 189);

Article 240 – Levying tax on a third person

1. For the purpose of enforcing payment of a taxpayer's acknowledged overdue tax liability, the tax authority may give a Tax Notice to a third person and enforce payment of tax from his/her property, if the taxpayer's property is so small that applying other tax liability security measures by the tax authority has not ensured payment of an acknowledged overdue tax liability, and a court decision or any other evidence has established that the third person has an outstanding tax liability that is due.

2. Upon fulfilment of the Tax Notice in full or in part, the taxpayer's tax liability shall be cancelled or reduced respectively.

3. If the third person fails to satisfy the Tax Notice in 30 days after its receipt, the tax authority may apply the measures provided for by paragraphs (1)(a) and (c)-(f) of Article 238 of this Code in relation to such person.

3¹. A tax authority may, except as provided for by paragraphs 2-3 of this article, carry out measures under Article 238(1)(a) and (c-f) of this Code against an authorised person selling the goods provided for by Article 161¹(1) and (2) of this Code if this person fails to fulfil the obligation to pay the amount of VAT under the same article to the budget.

Law of Georgia No 6817 of 14 July 2020 – website, 22.7.2020

Article 241 – Seizure of property

1. The tax authority, without any court decision, may seize any assets owned by and/or recorded on the balance sheet (other than property held under lease) of a person to the extent of the amount necessary to secure the acknowledged outstanding tax liability. Regarding the seizure of assets, an authorised person of the tax authority shall issue an individual administrative-legal act.

- 1¹. Under the contract between the tax authority and the National Bureau for Enforcement, the tax authority may delegate to the National Bureau for Enforcement carrying out procedures for seizure of the taxpayer's property.
2. For the purposes of this Code, the seizure of property means taking inventory of the property of a person, and prohibiting the disposal of such property (any form of alienation of the property by the person, pledge, mortgage, usufruct, easement, encumbering with building leasehold, lending, signing tenancy or lease agreements, transfer to any other person in temporary or permanent possession by the person). A representative of the tax authority shall record seized items in a Property Seizure Record.
- 2¹. In the cases provided for by paragraph (11) of this article, the tax authority shall send an individual administrative-legal act on seizure of the taxpayer's property, to ensure the seizure of the property of the person indicated in the act, to the National Bureau for Enforcement that performs, in the manner provided for by the legislation of Georgia, procedures for seizure of the property.
3. By written consent of the tax authority, a person may dispose of seized property, if the proceeds are fully put towards satisfying the outstanding tax liability. If property or any part of it has been sold with the consent of the tax authority and the proceeds have been fully put towards satisfying the outstanding tax liability, the seizure of the property shall be cancelled.
4. A Property Seizure Record shall be signed by a representative of the tax authority/National Bureau for Enforcement, the depositary of property, the taxpayer/liable person and other persons present at the seizure of the property. If such persons refuse to sign, a relevant note shall be made in the Record.
5. The tax authority/the National Bureau for Enforcement shall promptly send a Property Seizure Record to the registration authority concerned.
6. An expert or an auditor may be contracted to evaluate the seized property.
7. If there is a risk that a person may transfer property in a way that will complicate or prevent enforcement of payment of the outstanding tax liability, the tax authority may promptly seize the property (including bank accounts) irrespective of whether such tax liability has or has not been acknowledged. In such a case, seizure may be performed by affixing a seal. Under a contract with the National Bureau for Enforcement, the tax authority may assign the National Bureau for Enforcement to perform the seizure of and the respective procedures for affixing a seal to the property (other than bank accounts).
8. In the case provided for in paragraph 7 of this article, within 48 hours after performing procedures for seizure of property, the tax authority or the National Bureau of Enforcement shall file a motion to a court for confirmation of the seizure of a person's property (including bank accounts). The court shall, within five days, consider the motion by oral hearing and deliver a ruling on granting the motion in full or in part or on refusing to grant the motion. Failure of a party to appear or the impossibility to invite a party to a court hearing shall not result in deferring consideration of the motion of the tax authority or the National Bureau of Enforcement. If, within that period, the tax authority or the National Bureau of Enforcement fails to file a motion to the court or the court fails to deliver a ruling on the confirmation of seizure of property (including bank accounts), the seizure shall be deemed cancelled, and any seal affixed to the property shall be removed.
9. Seizure of property shall be cancelled in the cases provided for by Article 239(9) of this Code.
10. Seizure of a bank account shall mean the limitation by the tax authority of a person's right to dispose of the funds available in or transferred to his/her bank account to the extent of the amount of the seizure, except for the case when such person pays the tax, fines and penalty amounts payable under this Code to the budget, or pays state duties payable on the cases under consideration at the Constitutional Court of Georgia or a general court. The decision of the tax authority on seizure of a taxpayer's bank account shall indicate the person's identification number and the payable amount.
- 10¹. A liquidator of a banking institution, a special manager of a commercial bank, or a liquidator of a payment service provider registered under the Law of Georgia on Payment Systems and Payment Services may, under the Law of Georgia on Commercial Bank Activities, the Law of Georgia on Payment Systems and Payment Services and the Law of Georgia on Microbank Activities, transfer the seized accounts to another banking institution, another registered payment service provider and/or the National Bank of Georgia.
- 10². Where so provided for by the Law of Georgia on Holding Dematerialised Securities, Law of Georgia on Securities Market, Law of Georgia on Collective Investment Undertakings, Law of Georgia on Commercial Bank Activities and Law of Georgia on Microbank Activities, a liquidator or a special manager may transfer the seized securities accounts unchanged to another account keeper or a financial institution with relevant authorisation.
11. In the case provided for by paragraph 10 of this article, the person shall not have the right to open a bank account with the same or any other banking institution.

The tax authority/the National Bureau for Enforcement may require abandoning of a person's seized property directly to the state only if the acknowledged outstanding tax liability equals or exceeds the market value of the property.
